Hentschel foundation helps women

The Noel Foundation reaffirmed its commitment to helping the women and children of Pakistan in the form of a $50,000 grant to establish the Bakhtawar Zardari Middle School for Girls as well as additional funds to establish a rural mother and child health clinic to provide prenatal and ongoing health care and immunization. Both projects will be in the Sindh region-one of the poorest rural areas in Pakistan.

The Bakhtawar Zardari Middle School for Girls, named after Benazir Bhutto's eldest daughter, will help Pakistan in its attempts to educate its female population. Currently, the female population of Pakistan has only a 25 percent literacy rate, per capita income of US$417 (one of the lowest in the world), and infant mortality rate of 9.8 percent (one of the highest in the world).

"The Noel Foundation continues to support women around the world in their quest to improve their lives and the lives of their families and we believe that by working together we truly can make a difference," said Noel Irwin-Hentschel, founder of The Noel Foundation.

During the presentation, Irwin-Hentschel also presented the Prime Minister with The Noel Foundation Award which the Prime Minister had previously accepted at the United Nations for her "outstanding achievements as a woman leader and for helping to make the world a better place." The Prime Minister graciously accepted the award and grant and thanked Irwin-Hentschel with an emotional hug.

Refreshments will be served and small donations are suggested for this event sponsored by the Friends of the Carmel Valley Library. For information call 659-4575.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

My top five reasons why I believe there really is a God: 1.) Wet kisses from a Golden Retriever. 2.) Los Laureles Grade in a Porsche 944. 3.) Grilled swordfish tacos at Plaza Linda. 4.) Indian Summer days on Lake Tahoe. 5.) Springtime in Carmel Valley!

Yes, the winter was long, wet and nasty. And it was cold. And depressing. It stunk. But hey...Spring is really here, gang, and even though it hasn't been the wild solar party we were all hoping for, at least the rain has (sort of) stopped. And hey, that in itself is a good enough reason to go out and kick up your heels.

Like this Saturday, gang, the 13th of May, those party fools at your Community Center are very excited to be presenting the Carmel Valley Round-Up, an incredible night of live music, dancing, silent auction, raffles and the best BBQ food this side of the Rio Grande!

Hitch up your favorite steed and ride on down to Hidden Valley Music Seminars and enjoy this wonderful night of Country Western fun and entertainment. The show starts at 6:00 when the boys from the very popular local group Strictly Country take the stage. Enjoy a dinner of chicken or tri-tip, plant yourself at the watering hole, browse through the selection of very exciting silent auction items (over $12,000 in prizes donated) or join your friends and neighbors on the dance floor.

At 9:00 the valley floor will rumble to the sounds of Eight Second Ride. Wear your best dancin' boots and join in the fun. The evening will feature line-dancing lessons, door-prizes and contests for the best cowboy/cowgirl hat, best belt buckle, and whatever else we can think of. (I don't know, like, maybe, best fittin' jeans?)

Tickets for this wonderful night of Carmel Valley Country Western fun are just $30 per person with the BBQ dinner, or $15 for just the dancing and the watering hole. (Hey, completely tax-deductible!) And check this out; the weather is going to be great. BBQ seating is limited and advance ticket purchase is recommended. Call the CVCYC Ticket-master Hotline at 659-3983 for tickets and complete information.

A bit Thank You goes out to Community Board members Tim Doreck and John Edwards and community volunteers Dave Pellet, Reggie King, and Stacy Wheeler for their outstanding work at the SCRAMP races two weeks ago. The gang had a great time watching the motorcycles go 'round and 'round, checking out the paddock area, and even de-parking a few of the race fans. Hanging out with the SCRAMP volunteers is a great way to enjoy a day at the races and support the Community Center at the same time. The next big race weekend is coming up in July and your CVCYC welcomes everyone from the community who would like to get involved. Call 659-3983 for complete details.

Update from the sticker-spotter patrol: CVCYC treasurer Steve Anderson reports he saw a light blue Volvo wagon with a Community Center sticker east bound on CV Road last Tuesday, but it fell into the sink-hole out by Los Laureles Lodge before he could get a complete license plant number. Says Steve, "I'm now working closely with Cal-Trans in my investigation." So...if you have a dented light blue Volvo, contact the CVCYC immediately.

Question: What has been the happiest day of your life so far?

Meagan & Carolyn Sanford

I think when I had my grandchildren.

Diane Garneau

Probably the day when your kids "sail on their own." It feels like you've been successful.

Bodhi Garrett

A few years ago, I was in the Amazon River in a canoe with a river Indian. The jungle was so intense and wild and I was so isolated. The density and diversity of the thick life in the jungle was really cool.

Bobby Conlan

I've been very fortunate. It's hard to single out just one. I travel a lot and I'm always happy when I come home again.

Executive cuisine... Following is a note from the latest CVLL Board Minutes: "The meeting was called to order...by Vice President Peter Dew (President Michael Thatcher arrived late after cooking in the Snack Bar)." Let's face it: how many Presidents do YOU know--with the possible exception of Jimmy Carter--who would be willing to miss a Cabinet meeting to slave over a hot stove? We tip the old toque and applaud your dedication, Mike.

When the plane took off from the boarding house... Roomers went flying. Rather than squelch rumors in this column, we'll lay out some info from the Board Minutes. To quote from the Offishul Document: "There are some rule changes that will become effective as soon as we receive official word from Little League:

1. Leagues need to have surgical gloves on hand in case of injuries. (On both hands, we assume.) If a player has an excessive amount of blood on [his] uniform, [he] may not return to the game. [Ed. note: "excessive amount" is not a measurement we could find in our Table of Conversions.]

2. A player who doesn't show up for practices can be cut from his/her team.

3. Teams are still allowed only two twelve-year-old pitchers during a week of play.

4. Players who slide head first are automatically out unless. . .in the act of retreating to a base.

5. The 'on-deck circle' has been eliminated. All players except the batter must stay in the dugout."

In order to respect the tranquility of of our neighbors, the Board has taken strong exception to artificial noisemakers at ball games Please, no more cow-bells, sirens, moose calls, and howitzers. Cheer for your team with your natural vocal noisemakers. Thanks.

•

Plus ca change... Apologies to those of you who thought the game schedule Jon Siegel worked out was the final word. By now you have a New Revised Schedule. Make sure your team member has brought home the present latest version. If you have any questions or comments, please call Pam Priano at 659-2609 or 659-9122

•

Post-season play... To quote the latest minutes further: "The Major League TOC championship game will not be played in Carmel Valley. There will be TOC games here the week-end of July 1 with the second round played in Hollister. The Minor League TOC will be played in Greenfield and North County," but no one knows when. It looks as if the dates for the Major League All Stars will be July 8 to 21 or 22. If this makes little sense to you, stay tuned for finer-tuned information which will upset your summer plans if you use this column as a guide.

•

Want to be an All Star?... The players will vote on twelve picks and the All Star Coaches will pick the two remaining team members, who must be eleven or twelve and have played at least half of the games this season as a major league player. The nine and ten year old All Stars will be chosen by the coaches. The coaches, on the other hand, will be chosen by--but we digress.

•

Chocolate Malt... According to uncomfirmed reports from Gabriella (we didn't actually SEE the figures, and the LAPD certainly could have mishandled the wrappers found outside the unnamed local pizzeria), a certain team collected over $1,000 in chocolate sales. The name of the team must remain a closely guarded secret until we tell you, but a definite hint is contained in the lead of this paragraph, especially clear to all you fans of Humphrey Bogart and Manager Larry Warcken.

The distaff side... The latest softball

VALLEY VOICE
Fran Farina

I remember the first time I drove the banks at Daytona International Speedway. I was going about 110 mph in third gear with my husband yelling, "Hit the gas. Hit the gas." It's not that he was encouraging me to go faster, but if you wanted to stay on the bank, you had to keep your speed up!

During one of my laps, I decided that if I were to do more of this exciting (albeit dangerous) activity, I needed more training.

After finishing law school, my graduation gift to myself was a week at the Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving at the Sears Point track north of San Francisco. I spent five days working on my driving skills. My group was an interesting mix of people including the founder of EST and the kid brother of a family of race car professionals.

I actively pursued racing for the next six years, doing primarily Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) events. I "rented" a car and mechanical team from Tampa who would meet me at the various tracks in Florida. It was great fun and I met wonderful people.

Between races, I would explore the infield area and talk to various drivers about their cars. I am not mechanically inclined, but I do have an appreciation for how difficult it is to get all the parts of a car functioning at their maximum.

Over the years, I began to notice that some of the "regulars" were no longer participating in the races. The most often heard reason was that their bank accounts needed a rest. Occasionally, they would find a new love, like motorcycles or speedboats, but usually the reason was money.

The people I met in amateur auto racing were not wealthy. Most of them did their own repairs. They'd bring their trailers and settle in for a weekend at the track. What they loved most of all was having their car finish a race. The worst thing that could possibly happen was to receive a DNF after your name. That meant you didn't finish the race, that your car broke down or an accident forced you off the track.

I rolled a car one day on the track at Palm Beach. It was an interesting experience as you see the sky above you and then below you. It was not a particularly frightening experience, even in an open vehicle. Drivers have a five-point seatbelt which holds you firmly in place and the rollbar provides essential protection. Not that I wanted to repeat the episode with frequency, but it was part of the learning process.

As my work and political schedule became more demanding, my race weekends began to dwindle. Since driving is a skill which requires practice, I realized it was time for me to stop participating in SCCA events.

There are times when I can still hear my husband yelling, "Hit the gas." I look at photos of that day at Daytona which instantly take me back to that moment. After all these years, it remains a life experience which does not dull with age.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

To avoid being out-done by our national leaders, our county supervisors, without consulting us taxpayers, recently approved the $76 million artichoke bailout project, and sent it out to bid.

If we don't pay cash, it will be a little more, roughly $170 million, counting interest. All taxpayers in the Salinas Valley will be charged for it. It's supposed to save us from seawater intrusion by irrigating Castroville area artichokes with reclaimed sewage water, thus lessening the need for fresh water, now that they have used it all up.

As luck would have it, the seawater has already advanced many miles beyond the artichoke farms. It's at the Salinas City limits, so the idea is about 20 years to late. Spending that $170 million will do almost absolutely nothing toward saving the valley but it will sure do a lot for a handful of artichoke farmers.

It reminds me of President Clinton's now-famous $20 billion Mexican bailout to rescue some Wall Street investors.

Well, good. Now we know how our remarkable CIA manages to get rid of part of their $20 billion yearly allowance. A news report states that during 1994 our government took 6,300,000 classifications actions, creating an estimated 19 million pages of information that only selected officials can see.

More than 32 thousand government workers are employed, full time, doing this. If this was happening in some other country, especially some country that was $4.8 trillion in debt, like us, I'd consider it hilarious.

YOU CAN'T NEGOTIATE SALE IF NOBODY BOTHERS TO LOOK

Everyone knows that selling a home is a chore.

There's all those interruptions and inconveniences. Agents stopping by with and without appointments. Nosy neighbors and looky-loos peering in the windows. Open houses. Broker tours.

A headache you say? Sure, but what if nobody came? Talk about stress! Imagine this: You worked for two months getting the property in "saleable condition" by painting the front door, shampooing the rugs, having pest and home inspections performed, completing repairs.

You drove around to open houses in your area to see first-hand what the prices were. You took the time to interview three different companies to see what they do, and selected the most suitable agent. You've kept your dog outside for nearly two months. Your spouse and your kids are tiptoeing around in constant state of fear, and you're cleaning up every corner of your home as you back out of the door every day.

And nobody has shown up. You frantically cry, "What's wrong? Where is everybody? What's my agent doing, anyway?"

Unfortunately, this scene is being played out in literally thousands of Monterey area homes. Why?

Sometimes the agent has no marketing plan. Sometimes the agent doesn't follow the marketing plant they promised. Occasionally the plan just isn't strong enough to attract the right buyer.

But most likely, (say 90 % of the time) it boils down to the reality of too much supply and too little demand, and the home just doesn't quite have enough "going for it."

The fact is that throughout 1993 less than 10 percent of the homes for sale in Monterey have actually sold per month. What this means is that 90 percent of the people who have put their homes on the market have been failing. (In your life, can you recall the effort it has taken to rank in the top ten percent of anything you've done?)

While some homes are off by a mile, others are only slightly out of reach. "You know, we can always come down in price... we just need a little negotiating room."

Sure, but it's impossible to negotiate any sale if nobody comes to look. Houses, like any other product, sell at full price when they are priced right to start with!

"But if agents just come and look at mine, I know they'll agree that my improvements will sell the home." Maybe. Problem is agents don't view properties in a vacuum.

When a buyer is shown a house, they want to know what price nearby homes have sold for. A soft market means today's prices will be less than last month's prices.

So what can you do? A seller should meet with the agent no less than every six weeks to review the marketing plan. Remember, 80 percent of all sales come as a direct result of the Multiple Listing Service.

Agents who succeed in selling homes today usually have the most powerful marketing plan created: They're communicating reality.

"Round-Up" for dance and funds for the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center will be held at Hidden Valley Music Seminar on May 13th, with music by Eight Second Ride.

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

Those of us who can remember back to 1966 may recall that the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) reached 995 and then slipped again. It took until 1973 to break 1000.

Or did it?

We need to define the difference between "nominal" and "real" results. The DJIA did exceed the 1,000 number in 1973: a nominal value. However, the effects of inflation (let's say 3%) and taxes (lets say 30%) effectively discounted the 1000 number to a real value of 989.

I think you will agree there is a difference between the nominal numbers we read in the news and the real values behind them. This difference may be one cause, among others, of our general sense of uneasiness when we look at financial numbers; things are not what they seem to be.

I am told the S&P 500 Index of stocks improved at a 10.2% annual compound rate from 1926 to the end of 1994, in nominal terms. In nominal terms, a $1 investment in the S&P 500 Index grew to $810.05 over that period. Dazzling, but allowing for taxes and inflation, the real value was $20.72...not $810.05. The rate in real terms was 4.5%... not 10.2%

If the DJIA had reached 1,000 in 1966, it needs to reach 4,548 today to break 1,000 in real terms. The good news is, we're close. The sad news is, when it happens, we will only have caught up to DJIA values in 1966 dollars. Really.

Spring weather to Di for...a reminder that the Community Pool is now open weekend days from noon til 5 p.m. for your swimming, diving and (tanning?) pleasure. Weather permitting. Full-time pool operations start June 15th. Time to start thinking about swim lessons for the kids. Class size is limited and early registration is strongly encouraged. Contact the Community Center office or the pool office today for a complete schedule of classes and pool programs. Get into the swim of things.

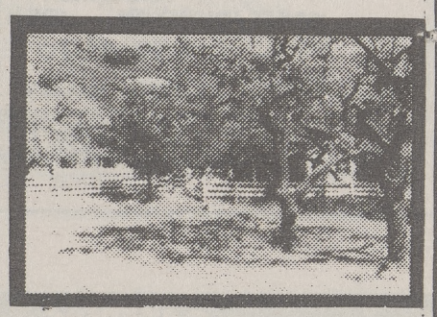

And finally...just for the heck of it... your Community Center is sponsoring an essay contest entitled "Why I love this really lousy Spring Weather." There is no age limit and anyone can enter. Submissions will be judged solely on originality and their ability to make our panel of judges laugh. Bribes are strongly encouraged and may be included with your essay. (Hey, tax-deductible!) The Grand Prize winner will receive a two week stay in Seattle.

Blind man's bluff... It's another word for baseball umpire, according to some of our more vocal fans. We'll tell you what: put your chest protector where your mouth is and volunteer to be one of our Blues. Anthony Belleci has agreed to be our head umpire; in that capacity we are delighted to welcome him to our Board and to our fields. Jon Siegel has offered him the use of a flak jacket, but here in CVLL, what with our 90%+ decent fans, no ump need fear more than a good-natured ribbing. On the other hand, that called third strike on my kid....

Lions and Tigers in the streets!... Also Volunteers, Falcons, and Indians seem to be assembled far from the bucolic confines of the CVLL Park these days. Why? Funny you should ask: Have you checked out the shine of a Neon, lately? Players from the aforementioned teams are helping sell raffle tickets for that bright new auto, made available by Larry Menke of (sorry, we can't advertise here, so don't read any further) Larry Menke Inc. Buick Chrysler Plymouth Volvo Daihatsu Hupmobile Cord Franklin Locomobile Auburn Colfax Grass Valley. That lovely Neon can be YOURS but is really does help if you buy the ticket. Larry of BCPVDHCFLACGV, although a fine fellow indeed, is not about to drop the car in your lap just because you are a loyal fan of CVLL. So please find a group of colorfully-clad local Little League types surrounding a fine new car and buy a ticket. We need your support for CVLL.

In Memoriam... The poet e.e. cummings spoke eloquently of "just-spring", when the world is "mud luscious" and "puddle-wonderful." Just in spring this week, with baseball and sun-chasing clouds, wildflowers and perfumed morning mists, we lost one of our most courageous youngsters. Drew Dietrich didn't have the opportunity to step to the plate as his brothers did, but he cheered at every Cougers' game. For fifteen years he inspiried others with a strength of heart that was finally greater than his own heart. He never made the All Star roster in CVLL, but he topped that roster in effort of soul. The next time any one of our youngsters makes a great play, remember that sunny smile that Drew would flash. A loving hug to Tom and Sally, Geoff and Nathan, for having given us the opportunity to know so fine a person. Drew, you played the most important game with grace; thank you for your example.
